CAMPBELL & M'DERMOT EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

SATUADAY MORNING, DEC. 23. papers in the South such as the Richto create the impression that a despotism exists in this country; that liberty exists only in name; that the South is will emerge victorious from the contest. They claim that the North is now afraid are the striking points of the speech:

slave States to about forty-five, and rendered that they cannot afford. Hence the key note so lately sounded in the leading and most able papers finds a very ready and decided response from the politicians. There is a hope among them that either through a foreign war or through the intestine feuds of the Republican party, the South will gain the grand points for which she stroggled in the war. President Johnson is looked to, though not without many misgivings, as a friend. The Emperor Napoleon is preferred over the President as a more radical and congenial ally. The democracy of the North are as ever, the last and forlorn hope. The rebel leaders can never give over their feeling that the democracy are always the natural allies of slavery and rebellion. They can count upon the willing-cause of all our difficulties is wiped out, and why should the two sections, both now free, be aliens? Community of language, laws, religion, and the greatarts of commerce and trade, will unite us sooner or later, as we devoutly believe. But at all events the Union will be maintained. There are worse things to contemplate than holding the South forever by armed occupation. A dismemberment of the Union would be dismemberment of the Union would be infinitely worse. The people will never the oath taken by all who are in Con-

The Speech of Thad, Stevens. The speech of Mr. Stevens, of Pennsylvania, in the House, on Monday, was in substance the same with his repers in the South such as the Rich-cent Enquirer, Examiner and Times, create the impression just a despot lately rebel States are not in the Union, and if again admitted they must come exists only in name; that the South is to the North what Ireland is to England to Hungary to Austria. They labor to insinuate and suggest in every possible way that the condition of things now existing forbids a restoration of population. The effect of the speech the Union—that there can be no real restoration of the Union—that there can be no real restoration of the Union—that the companionship must be an unwilling one. The editors seem bent on inspiring a hope that some day the issue of the war in whole or in part will change in favor of the South—that, in the language of Wendell Phillips, the South after all or the South—that, in the language of Wendell Phillips, the South after all will emerge victorious from the contest.

wendell Phillips, the South after all will emerge victorious from the contest. They claim that the North is now afraid to trust the South in Congress, and they sak whether we expect to change the South by keeping her out? Whether it is not more likely that we will only exacerbate her present temper by so doing. The longer we keep her out the more disaffected she will become, is the argument of these papers, and if we admit her now she has no pledgesto make as to what she will attempt to do. The papers alluded to call upon the Southern representatives one and all to retire from Washington and fall back on their dignity and their constituents. Let the North rule us to their fill, is the language employed. Let them make all the laws and let us simply show them by our stubborn, unyielding and implacable resentments how far they are from having restored that Union for which they have made such tremendous sacrifices.

The foregoing is an outline of the programme upon which the leading rebel papers in the South are now proceeding. They represent in this programme a large class of influential persons who feel that at any price whatever the prestige of the Seuth prior to and during the war, must be maintained. To give up their robellions status—to acquiesca cordially and in good faith in the new order of things—is to and acquiesca cordially and in good faith in the new order of things—is to invite, in their judgments, odium upon their antecedents and taint upon their future. This the leading public their future. This the leading public men at the South, especially in Virginia, men at the South, especially in Virginia, feel that they cannot afford. Hence the that they cannot afford. Hence the that this amendment must be consum-feeling that the democracy are always the natural allies of slavery and rebellion. They can count upon the willingness and subserviency of the democracy in success or defeat.

Taking this programme as our guide it is easy enough to understand the inflammatory articles with which the Southern press have began to teem. Everywhere they are raising the same voice. The attempt is being made to unite the South in favor of this policy by holding up to scorn every prominent man who shows signs of "giving in," as these papers call it, to the Yankee order of things. In North Carolina the military authorities have been compelled to commence a raid upon the disloyal sheets. We have some specimens of the rebel utterances down there before us. We notice in the Charlotte Tieses an editorial running thus:

"The South is now under a more grinding despotism than has heretofore found a place on the face of the earth."

" South is now under a more grinding despotism than has heretofore found a place on the face of the earth."

or all men alike. Not that all men will have equal power and sway within it lacted on the control of the mercenary race that now dominates over him."

The paper in which this article appears is edited by its old conductors who did so much to convince the people of. North Carolina before the war that they were living under a despotism. The editors found no freedom in the old as they find none in the new Union. What is to be done with those for whom they eater? Are we to take them into the Government and tell them to mould its policy! Are we, in other words, to give up to such men of the to other is to rule in firsh land, ought it to be those who were sneeges ful or those who were defeated in the samply because they refuse to be reconciled to the Union?
